

Efficiency Savings made by Learning Pool customers

Learning Pool provides e-learning subscription and collaborative learning services to the public sector in the UK.

Our products and services are used by public sector organisations, mainly councils, to develop their staff, elected representatives and school governors in essential competencies, service improvement and legislative awareness.

We help local authorities make significant savings in their Learning and Development spend by using our services and community. Because they have swapped traditional classroom based training for e-learning courses significant savings to the public purse have been achieved.

Some examples of such savings are:

Plymouth City Council saved £82,000 by using e-learning to deliver their mandatory Government Connect information security training to staff; the e-learning cost £3 per delegate compared to a classroom cost of £85.

Learning Pool is the market leader in public sector e-learning.

Plymouth then shared the Government Connect course they created to the 'pool' and Essex County Council repurposed it to deliver to 9,000 of their own employees, saving them £849,000. This sharing meant that Essex was able to create their e-learning course for £1 per head compared to their classroom cost of £65.

Rotherham Metropolitan Borough Council has recently saved £35,000 by delivering Safeguarding Adults training to 1,500 council and partner organisation staff. In addition, and also using Learning Pool, they rolled out a Health and Safety e-learning course to staff which cost £9 per head (£41,000) compared to a classroom equivalent of £56 per head (£224,000); the result was a significant saving of £183,000.

Basildon District Council created six HR Policy compliance courses for managers and saved £17,500. The council has since shared these courses on topics such as Absence management, Capability management and Disciplinary procedures with the 'pool' for other members to use.

Essex's Vine partnership of its 15 councils created an e-learning course on Performance Management and saved £132,000.

Winchester City Council created an induction e-learning programme for its new starters, creating a saving of £47 per head, which currently equates to £8,000.

London Borough of Brent has created an induction e-learning course saving them £116,000 each year.

These few examples from just some of our customers have resulted in savings to the public purse of £1,422,500.
